Background

Lisa is a career and leadership development coach who has more than 15 years of experience using an innovative, forward-thinking, outcome-oriented approach to helping clients address intense change in their lives and within their organizations.

Lisa has also helped career coaching clients identify their interests, their drivers and the correct development planning. Lisa uses personal branding assessments, like the 360 Reach, and career development assessments, like the Strong Interest Inventory, to help clients plot their career paths.

Lisa has also helped leaders address a wide range of challenges, from organizational restructuring to resolving client conflict. Lisa is passionate about leadership development as she is about helping executives plot their careers. Lisa has significant experience supporting healthcare and science and technology organizations, including civilian and military research and development executives.

As a Human Capital Consultant at Booz Allen Hamilton for more than a decade, Lisa developed an internal coaching program at the Internal Revenue Service, where leaders were trained to assist their employees with their developmental journeys.

She also supported coaching programs at the Nuclear Regulatory Commission and at other agencies within the Intelligence Community, including Department of Defense Agencies. Lisa also designed, developed and implemented a career development program for the 220,000 employees of the Department of Homeland Security. Lisa has coached for the Birch Stewart Kolasch law firm, the National Science Foundation, the Department of Health and Human Resources, the Food and Drug Administration, the National Institute of Standards and Technology, the Naval Undersea Warfare Center and the Department of Agriculture.

Lisa is a certified 360 Reach Analyst, a certified brand strategist through the Resume Writing Academy, an Academy Certified Resume Writer and holds the Associate Certified Coach credential from the International Coaching Federation.

Prior to becoming an executive coach, Lisa worked as a consultant for The George Washington University Career Center. She has also created mentoring workshops for high-potential leaders and has built classroom and online training tools for federal employees, including leadership curricula for senior executives.
