Background

Dan has more than 25 years of experience as a consultant and coach working with individual and organizational clients in exploring—and fulfilling—their needs. An International Coaching Federation (ICF) certified coach, Dan brings a personable and holistic approach to coaching, one informed by cognitive-behavioral methods and neurosciences, and his personal experience.

As a coach, Dan specializes in getting to the core of a client’s needs and working with them to define the best path forward. His experience spans public, private and not-for-profit sectors from health to local, state and federal governments and international development, mostly in the areas of management and information technology. He has worked with front-line workers, specialists, mid and upper management and C-Suite executives.

Organizations he has worked with include the World Bank, U.S. Navy, numerous U.S. federal cabinet-level departments, Computer Sciences Corporation, Booz Allen, James Martin, Robbins Gioia, KPMG, the States of Hawai’i, Maine and Tennessee and the Florida Keys Aqueduct Authority and the Community Development Commission of the County of Los Angeles.

Dan is also a member of the ICF Coaching Science Community of Practice. As a leader in professional and volunteer settings, Dan is dedicated to enabling colleagues, personnel and teams to achieve their highest potential.

Dan founded Mindful Coaching in 2018 to provide mindful leadership and life coaching to those in transition and to people looking to make a change in their professional and personal lives. He also specializes in serving clients as an adjunct to counseling and recovery programs. Dan’s greatest satisfaction is in a client’s “ah-ha” moments when they suddenly see new possibilities and a path to greater fulfillment and happiness.
